Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Document DE-A-100 01 444 (D1) discloses (cf. col.2, l.62-col.4, l.49; figures) a connector assembly suitable for attaching a hardware component and a trim panel (5) to a vehicular structure (3) (see PCT Guidelines, C-III, 4.8), said connector assembly comprising:

a shank (2) including a head end (2a) and an anchor end (7) suitable for securing the hardware component to the vehicular structure; and a head (1) operatively coupled to said shank (2), said head (1) including a trim retaining end for securing the trim panel (said trim retaining end cooperating with the "connecting means (4)"), a shank engaging end (the "U-shaped profile" with its associated "holding means (6)"), and a break neck therebetween (cf. column 4, lines 9-11 and 17-27), wherein said trim retaining end breaks from said head (1) at said break neck when a load is applied to said head (1) allowing removal of the panel (5) from the hardware component and the vehicular structure.

Indeed D1 specifies in column 4, lines 17-27 that, in a non-illustrated embodiment, the break part on the head (1) is situated in the contact area between the trim panel (5) and the head (1), which means that said break part joins the trim retaining end to the shank engaging end as defined herein.

The fact that the break part can be obtained by a cut (col.4, l.9-11) makes it a break neck.

Therefore the subject-matter of claim 1 is not novel in the sense of Article 33(2) PCT.
